To the Animal Editor,

The Washington Herald.

Dear Sir: I think..... would be an appropriate name for the grizzly bear, a picture of which appears in this morning's paper.

Sincerely,

and played in the trees on my native hills.

"Only," he added, "my mother used to tell me that I was the cutest cub in the world, and these seem to me to be quite ordinary cubs. However, don't let Mrs. Lucy, their mother, know I said that, because she thinks they are the only little bearlets in the universe. She's quite silly about them, I say."

As Mr. Grizzly spoke, "Mrs. Lucy" came out of her cage, followed by the twin cubs, and Mr. Grizzly hurriedly changed the subject.

Mr. Peacock is Delighted.

Yesterday morning Mr. Peacock was quite delighted when he heard that he had received so many nice names from the kiddies of the District. "I always said the children of this city were brighter than in any other," he remarked. "They know real beauty when they see it, they do," and he preened his feathers in his most satisfied manner.

"Just look at those names," he continued. "They call me 'Beauty' and 'Wonder,' and all sorts of nice things."

Children writing to the animal editor beg to be let in on the secret of the "surprise" that will reward the winners of the naming contest. However, the editor thinks that they had better wait until the surprise is ready; something might happen to it if he told.
